PRESIDENT M'KINLEY SHOT BY AN ANARCHIST IN BUFFALO

Although Seriously Wounded, Nation's Prostrate Chief Magistrate Rallies and May Recover.

Would-Be Assassin Hurried by Officers From Exposition Grounds and Incarcerated in Cells to Avert Summary Vengeance From the Indignant Populace--Leon Czolgosza: Real Name of the Assailant.

Early this morning the following Associated Press message came: "Secretary Curtin has said we further believe he will be killed tonight."

The last bulletin before this declared that the president was "doing remarkably well."

All day the hospital at the Millersburg home was thronged. It was announced that bulletins would be issued at regular intervals, and on these the public must wait.

At 10 o'clock the president was taken to the hospital at the Millersburg home by a special train. He was taken to the hospital at the Millersburg home by a special train. The president, though well guarded by United States marine service detachments, was fully exposed to such an attack as occurred. He stood at the edge of the raised date upon which stands the great pipe organ. Thousands of people crowded in at the various openings to give up their attention. The president was in the first row of the front of the hall. He was in the front of the hall. He was in the front of the hall.

of note who approached. From the president's left stood Mr. Curtin. He was shortly after 9 p. m. when one of the things which constituted the presidential party, a man without any of ordinary appearance, and who, dressed in black, approached as if to greet the president. Mr. Curtin and President M'Kinley were standing in the center of the hall. The man's hand was extended in a gesture of friendship. He was taken to the hospital at the Millersburg home by a special train. He was taken to the hospital at the Millersburg home by a special train.

There was an instant of almost complete silence. The president stood speechless. A look of horror, almost of bewilderment, on his face. He recoiled over his wife.
